Form, Function & Utility?

So what does that really mean?
Determining Form, Function, and Utility

- To apply the form, function and utility standard, define the commodity/service in terms of the minimal essential requirements.

- Requirements should not be over or understated. These requirements must relate to the actual needs and not be included to circumvent using the Preferred Sources.

- Does the commodity or service meet either agency specifications or industry standards which may be applicable?

- If there are deviations from specifications for a commodity, will a substitute suffice or substantially meet the minimum requirements for function and performance?

- Are deviations from services specifications minor? Could the service be made to suffice, or does it substantially meet the minimum requirements for function and performance?

• Can preferred source make necessary accommodations to meet agency purchasing needs?

• Can the Preferred Source deliver the goods or start the services within the necessary timeframe?

• The pricing must be within 15% of prevailing market pricing.

• Purchasers should not accept a Preferred Source service which is materially unsuited to the needs of the agency.

• Purchasing Agencies have to be able to justify their decisions in their procurement records.
Determining Form, Function, and Utility

Waivers

If an agency determines commodity does not meet form, function or utility:

Provide written notification

Preferred Source has 10 days to respond

If the preferred source provides a declination or does not respond, agency may proceed with purchase.

www.corcraft.org

www.nysid.org

If the commodity you need is available, place your order
HOW DO I OBTAIN A SERVICE?

CHECK THE PREFERRED SOURCE LIST BEFORE ISSUING A SOLICITATION!

http://www.ogs.state.ny.us/procurecounc/pdfdoc/pplist.pdf

There is no priority among the Preferred Sources for Services. Each of the Preferred Source websites contain a link to email the Preferred Source and the negotiations start by submitting your Scope of Work.

Working with the Preferred Source, ensure the Services offered meets the form, function and utility of your agency. If so, a contract is drafted and the pricing is agreed to between the Governmental Entity and the Preferred Source.

After you agree the pricing is reasonable, the Preferred Source submits the pricing to OGS for review and approval if the cost exceeds $50,000.00.

After OGS pricing approval, the contract may have to be submitted to OSC for approval.
